Lotto Prize Goes Unclaimed In The Dudley Area

Camelot Group plc, operator of The National Lottery[®], today announced that the £168,632 prize from the Lotto draw on Saturday 9 December 2006 has remained unclaimed more than 180 days after the draw took place.

Therefore the money, plus the interest it earned, has now passed over to the Good Causes. The ticket-holder – who matched five numbers plus the bonus ball – bought their Lotto ticket in the Dudley area. The deadline for the ticket-holder to claim their prize was at 5.30pm on Thursday 7 June 2007.

A National Lottery spokesperson said: “Unfortunately, I can confirm that the ticket-holder did not come forward within the deadline to claim their prize and has now sadly missed out on this substantial amount of money. To avoid this unfortunate situation happening again, I would urge all National Lottery players to check their tickets on a regular basis.”

“We tried very hard to find the ticket-holder and it’s a real shame that they have missed out, but there is still one winner – the nation. This money will now go to the Good Causes, adding to the £20 billion which, over the last 12 years, has funded the biggest programme of civic regeneration seen in the UK since the 19th Century.”

Players concerned about lost or unchecked tickets may want to think about playing on the internet or by mobile phone in future. This way, they are informed of any wins electronically so will never miss out on a prize again. Similarly playing by subscription ensures that lines are entered in advance and lucky winners are notified if their numbers come up on Lotto or Thunderball. They can either visit www.national-lottery.co.uk to play online or call 0845 912 5000 for a National Lottery Subscriptions pack.
