Lotto Jackpot Win Is The Perfect Pill To Swallow!

A pharmaceutical technical assistant from Braunton has discovered the perfect cure for those end-of-summer blues – a £1,298,223 share of the Lotto jackpot from the draw on Wednesday 3 October 2007.

Janet Baddick (49) always plays the same numbers, based on family birthdays and ages, and always updates these following a birthday. It was fate that meant she had forgotten to change 26 to 27 following a recent celebration and so scooped the jackpot.

Janet and her husband Nick (53) are still making plans on how to spend their win. They will be buying a new family car and will be upgrading their planned trip to Florida to first class. Janet found out she had won when she got up on Thursday morning and remembered she had not checked her ticket.

Janet said: "I got the numbers up on Ceefax and simply couldn't believe what I was seeing. I immediately woke Nick up to get him to double check the numbers for me. When he confirmed I was not dreaming, we were in complete shock. I was speechless. It still hasn't sunk in even now!

"I normally update my numbers when somebody has a birthday but I had forgotten to do it this time. Thank goodness I didn't. We are still really thinking about what to do with our winnings. We will definitely be investing some for the future and also test driving some new cars. We have already booked a holiday to Florida, but the win means we can afford to upgrade as well as having more spending money!"
