Lotto Jackpot Prize Goes Unclaimed

Camelot Group plc, operator of The National Lottery, today announced that the amazing £962,302 jackpot prize from the Lotto draw on Saturday 20 October 2007 has remained unclaimed more than 180 days after the draw took place.

Therefore the money, plus the interest it earned, has now passed over to the Good Causes. The ticket-holder – who matched all six numbers – bought their Lotto ticket in the King's Lynn area. The deadline for the ticket-holder to claim their prize was at 5.30pm on Thursday 17 April 2008.

A National Lottery spokesperson said: "Unfortunately, I can confirm that the ticket-holder did not come forward within the deadline to claim their prize and has now sadly missed out on this substantial amount of money.

"We tried very hard to find the ticket-holder and it's a real shame that they have missed out, but there is still one winner – the nation. This money will now go to the Good Causes, adding to the £20 billion which, over the last 13 years, has funded the biggest programme of civic regeneration seen in the UK since the 19th Century."

The unclaimed prize from the King's Lynn area will be added to the staggering £20 billion that has already been raised for the Good Causes through National Lottery ticket sales since launch in November 1994.

However there is another unclaimed Lotto prize in the King's Lynn and West Norfolk area, where a ticket worth £72,840 has yet to be claimed. The owner of the winning ticket matched five numbers plus the bonus ball in the Lotto draw on Saturday 29 March 2008 and has until 5.30pm on Thursday 25 September 2008 to claim their prize.
